Vector's PC-Duo Enterprise selected as Best Systems Management Solution Finalist

Vector Networks, a provider of desktop management solutions that reduce the cost of owning PCs, has today announced that PC-Duo Enterprise has been selected as Best Systems Management Solution finalist in the 2004 Codie Awards.

The Codie Awards is the standard-bearer for celebrating outstanding achievement and vision in the software and information industry in which it provides the only peer recognition program in the software and information industry. PC-Duo Enterprise was carefully selected from a number of entrants by independent judges who are key industry media representatives.

Ken Wasch, SIIA President, states, "In light of the intense competition this year, to be named a Codie Awards finalist is a tremendous honour and an important achievement,"

Ray Clethro, Chairman, Vector Networks, remarks, "It is extremely gratifying to have a product that is recognised by our industry peers. There is no finer compliment than that! It is our responsive approach to product development that keeps us a leader in the field and praised by our customers in the enterprise environment."

The 2004 Codie Awards will be presented at a black-tie gala on Tuesday, May 18th, at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco, CA. Full information about the 2004 Codie Awards Program is available at: <http://www.sii.net/codies2004/>
